EDITORS APPEAL-The above, as far EDITORS APPEAL—The above, as far as refers to General W. P. Benton, is a tissue of falsehoods. General Benton, ably surprised at the almost immediate who was an appointee of the late Presifalling five or six times he walked off, leaving his load for a dray, and looking like a genuine "mud plow."

ous to his death.

EDITORS APPEAL-Having been out of town for a day or two, I did not see the reply of the Avalanche to my strict-ures on its evident lack of knowledge in the department of political economy. The attempted justification of its first false position lands it more deeply in the slough. If he had reflected a little while he would have seen, unless the Judge Heiskell referred to the death of Chief-Justice Nicholson, and paid a short tribute to his memory, remarking not a borrower every day; but, according to him, the government is worse off himself to death, and who had done his than Micawber, for it is always borrow son, late chief-justice of the State, said work well. He thought it was entirely ing. A writer on finance, ambitious of proper that that court, as well as every a respectable following in an intelligent business community, can hardly be beld excusable for confounding the "debtor" and the "borrower," and regarding both as convertible and synonomous terms. The government is a debtor to the extent of over two thousand millions, and consequently it is, according to the Avalanche, a borrower on the market every day, entering into active competition with every other borrower by continually and incessantly off ring 'six per cent. in gold" interest. The Avalanche says that the government, by this attitude of incessant borrowing, is diverting capital every day from the ton that this was an erroneous position.

I pay due respect to the mainty, in the first brief communication that this was an erroneous position.

I pay due respect to the mainty, in the mainty of th tion that this was an erroneous position. Now, I may state in addition, that the government has not only cessed borrowing, but has been actually engaged in > the statement is taken from the columns of the Avalanche, into which paper it was copied one day last week. "An interesting statement, showing the leading features of the financial pol-icy of the United States since 1862, and the results which have accrued from it, has just been prepared by the New York chamber of collimères. The total an ount of meney borrowel by the government since that period was $2,808,549,439 and the total reduction of the public debt has been $646,000,000 in round numbers. .....$ 646,600,000 Instead, then, of being a borrower every day, it appears from this state-ment that the government has been paying its debts for the last ten years to the aggregate amount of $646,000,000. "This is on a par with Micawber," says the Avalanche. Remarkable financial acumen. Every man who owes money on a note is a borrower always, and is competing at every instant of time with all those who wish to effect a loan. The richest part of the argument of the Avalanche, however, is the trenchant passage devoted to interest. The argument is short and p'ain, so that every-body who knows anything about money changing can see the conspicuous error is it. "To illustrate: A desires to loan $1000, for which B offers six per cent. interest in greenbacks. But A prefers o buy a government bond, and without running the risks of less by anytedy's failure, he realizes six per cent. in gold." With the telegrams from Wall street under his eye, the Avalanche amateur deliberately reiterates that a lector. Every one interested is requested person can obtain a thousand deliar to give their name to the committee or amateur deliberately reiterates that a bond for a thousand dollars, and "thus to Mr. J. S. Toof, secretary cotton exrealizes six per cent. in gold" on his investment. Right in the fluancial department in the number of his paper in

These are the prices of "governments" as printed in the Avalanche. The class of bonds, showing that it would cash to purchase a thousand-dollar bond bearing six per cent, and that therefore the actual per cent. on the money laid cut would not reach beyond five in gold. A joke at the expense of Lycurgus the second is very like the dry bones of a skelston peeping out from behind the mask of a clown, when viewed from they may proceed from some natural de-ficiency, but errors of fact that come from vincible ignorance are unpardonthe feature of the combination, are the choice operatic selections by Mr. statement. Proceedings had in the Memphis Courts Yesterday - Meeting of the Bur To-day.

The death of Chief Justice A. O. P. Nicholson has made a profound impres-sion upon this community, and a leeling of sorrow prevails, especially with the embers of the bar who have practiced in the sopreme court. All the courts yesterday adjourned, and the bar will nold a meeting this morning, when suitable resolution will be passed. Circuit Court.

In the circuit court his boner, Judge Heiskell, announced to the bar that he and with great regret, learned of the leath of Hon. A. O. P. Nicholson, chiefjustice of the supreme court of this State; that the distinguished abilities and the irreproschable character of the late chief justice were too well known to the bar of this State to justify extended comment; that the late Chief-Justice Nicholson had struggled under a load of judicial labor, and had worked himself to death, and in the opinion of the court it was proper to adjourn as an expression of respect of the bar and court to the memory of Hon. A. O. P. Nicholson, ale chief justice of the State.
